Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Gaylord:

Many thanks for your kindness and hospitality the other evening. My sister and I enjoyed ourselves greatly.

The quotation that you were interested in is from T. S. Eliot's poem, "The Rock":

"And the wind shall say
These were a decent people
Their only monument, the asphalt road —
And a thousand lost golf balls."

I will look forward to seeing you sometime after the first of the year.

Best regards,

Paul.
